Chartis, a leading healthcare advisory firm, today announced that Kari Hutchison, RN, has joined the firm as a Digital & Technology Transformation Partner.

Hutchison brings more than 20 years of experience leading EHR-enabled transformation initiatives aimed at improving quality, equity outcomes, and the caregiver and consumer experience. She will focus on reimagining care delivery through a digital lens.

Chartis is honored to have Kari join our team,” said, Jody Cervenak, Chartis Managing Partner and Leader, Digital & Technology Transformation. “Her clinical background, paired with her leadership of enterprise clinical transformation programs, makes her uniquely positioned to help our clients improve clinical pathways and the delivery of care.”

Prior to joining Chartis, Hutchison served in a variety of health technology leadership roles at a national consulting firm, one of the top 20 largest not-for-profit health systems in the US, and at the nation's second largest multi-state health system. She also has direct patient experience, having served as a registered nurse in an academic medical center.

Hutchison holds degrees in nursing from Marquette University and Organizational Communication and Public Relations from Michigan State University.
